STOP the DISCRIMINATION

Across Australia, road rules regulating the application of window film on vehicles can be confusing, unfair and discriminatory.

Federal law permits dark tinted glass or 'privacy glass' on new vehicle windows behind the driver. Australian tinters, however, are prohibited by State and Territory law from applying that same darkness of film to existing vehicles. So your mate is allowed to buy a new car with dark windows in the rear, but you're not allowed to have the windows in your old car tinted to match his.

Please sign our petition below if you agree that...

⇒ This situation is confusing and unfair to vehicle owners and tinters

⇒ State and Territory laws should allow 35% Visible Light Transmittance (VLT) on front side windows, and lower VLT for windows behind the driver

⇒ The State and Territory laws should be bought into line so all Aussie car owners abide by the same regulations
