

ACCREDITATION MATTERS

Would you use a builder or electrician who wasn't licensed? WERS For Film accreditation is an assurance of compliance, quality and credibility

Windows are worth thousands of dollars - using a licensed installer helps protect and enhance that investment

WERS For Film is the only independent, government-endorsed accreditation program in Australia for film installers

Accredited installers have the exclusive authority to issue energy certificates, which can be used by assessors when determining your building's energy rating

Without an energy certificate you can't benefit from potential energy rating credits from the film install

Whether you want to reduce energy bills, control temperature, improve safety and security, cut glare or create privacy, accredited installers are highly trained, and can recommend the best WERS-rated film to address your specific requirements
